

Final Report Erasmus

3.1 Please briefly describe the activities you have carried out during your mobility period.

During my mobility period, my main focuses were getting to know new cultures, implementing a project with Spanish students using additive manufacturing, and improving communication skills with international project members.

A significant part of my visit involved exploring the school, where it became evident that the institution places great emphasis on practical projects that require students to develop their own solutions. The project teams were structured to include three German and two Spanish students, fostering collaboration and mutual learning. After completing the project, we presented our results in English, which helped enhance my language skills. Additionally, we visited Spanish landmarks such as La Plaza de España with the Spanish students.

Overall, my visit to IES Politécnico was highly enriching, providing diverse insights into different approaches to projects, practical implementation possibilities, and opportunities for further exchange. I would eagerly participate in another exchange with the Spanish school IES Politécnico, as I greatly appreciated the open and friendly nature of the Spanish people.

3.2 What did you learn as a result of participating in your mobility activity? Please try to be specific and mention concrete skills that you have improved and knowledge that you have gained.

Through my visit to the Spanish school IES Politécnico, I was able to expand my project management skills on an international level. My verbal communication in English significantly improved after just a few days. In the project's design phase, we had to consider electronic components, which was a new experience for me since my background was primarily in mechanical design. This required frequent adjustments to the design and finding solutions. Additionally, I gained initial experience in programming, which will benefit my future career. The project goals were achieved by the end of my stay, thanks to excellent collaboration with the Spanish students. The new experiences will assist me in future projects. During my free time, I immersed myself in Spanish culture and visited various city landmarks, including the Seville Cathedral and other notable sites.
